

Dear researcher,

Are you a PhD candidate or an early-stage researcher? Would you like to immerse yourself in the world of transferable skills and network with your fellow colleagues from across Europe? Then we have the perfect opportunity for you!

As part of the Link EDU-RES project, the University of Essex and academic professionals from YERUN (Young European Research Universities Network) are organising a Summer School in Transferable Skills. Hosting trainers from different European institutions and with a range of expertise, the Summer School in Transferable Skills will take place in Colchester, United Kingdom, from Monday 22nd August to Friday 26th August 2022. The event will be conducted in person but it also has online components for which you can register (these online components are limited to live streaming of lectures and subsequent access to their recordings).

What?	Summer School in Transferable Skills
Where?	University of Essex, Colchester (UK)
When?	22-26 August 2022
Who?	PhD candidates and early-stage researchers
Register	Until 1st August 2022 (5pm UK time)

Interested? More information and the registration form can be found on this website. Registrations are open until the 1st of August, 5pm UK time (6pm CET), but hurry up - the number of places is limited!

More information? Contact us!

- Mary Mazzilli \(University of Essex\)
- Margot Chauliac \(University of Antwerp\)

See you in Essex!
the Link EDU-RES team